Historic England first listed the Manor House in 1954 with this (now updated) description of the type and layout of the building and features. It is believed the special * listing of the building relates to the grand staircase which was a feature of many grand Manorial Homes.

The Manor house is now nursing home. Late C17 or early C18. Brick, with moulded brick storey bands and moulded brick capped plinth. Old-tile hipped roof with moulded wood eaves and C20 hipped tiled turret addition. 4 axial brick ridge stacks. Double-pile plan.

EXTERIOR: 2-storey with attic and cellar. 7-window range north front, the central 3 window bays advanced. 6/6 sashes throughout with painted reveals with sills and gauged brick lintels, moulded wood doorcase with 2 fluted Doric pilasters and plain entablature with cornice, later 6-panelled divided doors. 4 box dormers with 3/6 sashes. Left return side (east): partly covered by C19 2-storey link to stable block (qv). Right return side (west): 3 bricked-up window recesses, 2 box dormers, ground floor covered by tiled brick lean-to. Rear: two 6/6 sash windows on each floor at each end with the left pairs matching the front elevation windows and those to the right are restored and have moulded cases. In the centre is a tall 8/4 sash window with moulded case and adjacent bricked-up tall window recess. Central 5-panelled partly glazed door and adjacent 3-light casement. 4 box dormers with 3/6 sashes.

INTERIOR: hall with curved and swept oak staircase with toad-back handrail, 3 column-on-vase balusters per tread, open treads with carved strings. Oak dado panels with fielded panels with fluted vertical framing. Early C19 6-panelled doors with panelled doorcase reveals. Early C19 beaded cornice. Carved marble fireplace with Bacchanalian figures on pilasters and festoons on overmantel. Front and back rooms to west with moulded plaster cornices and carved marble fireplaces, the front room with plaster frieze with Corinthian columns over large niche on end wall.

More recent history saw the house used as a Children’s home, and latterly as a Nursing Home between 2002 and 2010 before it closed down. It has never been opened since then.

The current owners (Marchaven Homes) made application in 2008 to add a 16 bedroom extension and work on the main gates. This was approved but with conditions restricting the overall use of the Manor House to maintain the ‘amenity’ of the surrounding area.

An appeal against one of the conditions was upheld but the restriction to use only as Residential care remained. Within the Classification C2 in planning which includes Boarding Schools, Residential Colleges and Training centres, the planning authorities rejected this potential use. The proposed development never took place.

Since then, the only activity on the property was a repair to the roof which was ordered by Shropshire council and carried out by the owners.
